

Total Inclusivity at School

Total Inclusivity means recognising, valuing, protecting, and nurturing diverse identities, including those of race, gender, sexual orientation, class, disability, age, religion and language. We should all seek to work towards Total Inclusivity in our school communities. This session is designed to provide you with both a theoretical and practical basis for being the best, most inclusive, school that you can be.

What are the aims of the session?

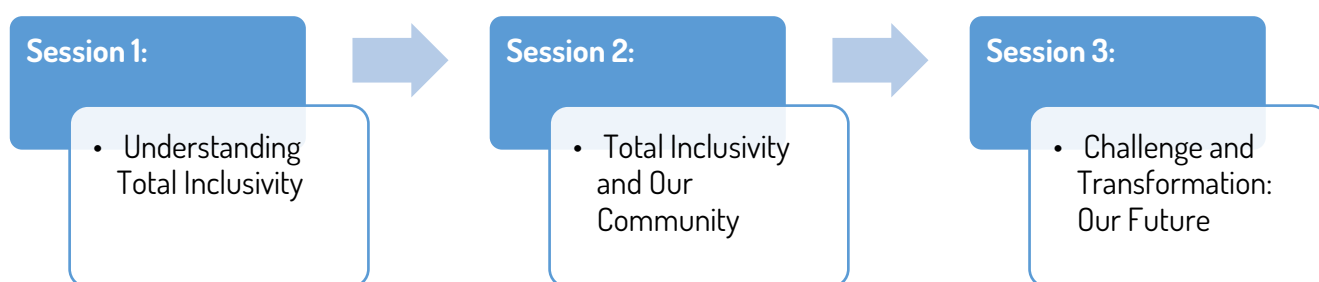

An increasing number of schools are now grappling with the complexities and challenges of implementing anti-racist, pro-LGBTQ+, gender-equitable, non-discriminatory curriculums, policies and practices. This session provides accessible and informative pathways to address covert and overt discrimination in schools and offers practical steps towards Total Inclusivity.

What will we do in the session?

This session aims to engage all members of the educational community. The session will lay out the foundations for nurturing a Totally Inclusive school community which values diversity, enables healthy identities and cultivates respect for difference.. Areas that the session will cover include:

- Understanding identity, diversity and intersectionality
- Implicit bias, stereotypes and prejudice
- Ways of knowing, thinking and working
- Language and microaggressions
- Safeguarding everyone: creating Totally Inclusive spaces
- Creating a culture of change: leaders and leadership

What will the session look like?
